

Classroom Cleaning Day

Today is Classroom Cleaning Day. It starts at ten o'clock and ends at eleven o'clock. Ben and Mary are discussing what they can do next. Miss Chan suggests they can use a towel and a broom.

At ten o'clock, Ben and his classmates are cleaning the classroom. Ben is cleaning the desk. Mary is sweeping the floor. Susan is cleaning the blackboard. They are as happy as birds.

Then it rains. A bee is flying into the classroom. All of the classmates are as scared as rabbits. No one wants to work anytime. Mary is screaming and drops the broom. Susan is crying. Ben thinks, 'Oh no! What can we do?' He is scared too.

Ben runs to Miss Chan and tells her about the bee. So, she catches the bee by using a bowl and sends it to the garden. Then, the bee is gathering honey and flies to its hive. After that, the classroom is in order now. Ben thinks, 'Okay, we solve the problem, but the classroom is still in a mess!' So Ben says, 'Let's work faster!' And the classmates work as fast as cars. Finally, the classroom is neat and tidy. The classmates give thanks to Ben and Miss Chan. Ben smiles.
