Dear Noah,

What an experience! I went to a book shop to buy some books to help me to finish my homework. I found some books. I chose books about science. I was so interested in the book that I even forgot the time. It was six o'clock already! I still didn't notice the time until Mum called me.

'Jerry! Where are you?' Mum asked worriedly. 'Oh, Mum! I am in a book shop.' I answered. 'It's already a quarter past six. Come back right now! The table is all set!' Mum said angrily. I was scared that my mum would be angry with me so I ran home as fast as a flash, forgetting to pay for the book.

I rushed out of the book shop. At that time, the alarm was ringing. A security guard chased after me and shouted loudly, 'Hey! Child! Hey! You must pay for the book! Don't run!' I stopped and asked, 'Have I not paid for it? I am so sorry, my mum told me to go home immediately, so I forgot to pay for the book.' I apologized.

Luckily, the security guard wasn't mad at me at all. He said kindly, 'It's okay but just don't do it next time.' I nodded. The security guard smiled. I could say he is as gentle as a sheep.

Best wishes,

Jerry
