Title: A Theft

Dear Diary,

I had an unforgettable experience this morning when I was in the Art Museum today.

Today morning, I went to the Central Art Museum. The basement of the museum was huge and fancy. While I was looking at an interesting statue, I really adored the person who made the statue. Suddenly, a suspicious man with a black mask and a grey cap was walking like a cat. I pretended not to see him and concentrated on the magnificent art piece.

After the man snuck past me, I decided to follow the man. After a while, he 'led' me to another masterpiece of art. Then, I swirled a long way and came opposite the man. At this moment, the man was staring at the lady's handbag! His eye grew red with greed. I stared at the man like a cop. The man slowly moved nearer to the lady's handbag.

As quick as a flash, the man snatched the phone and sprinted away! 'Stop that thief!' I yelled. I was panic-stricken! There was no time to waste. I bolted towards the thief. Although I am a girl, I am also a skilled runner in the school's athlete team.

Some security guards and I raced towards the thief. Then, something made my blood freeze. The thief broke the window and jumped into the river! A few seconds later, the thief popped out his head and escaped successfully. After that, we called the police.

I hope the police can catch the thief as soon as possible. What a day!
