It was a sunny day. I was walking to the mall to go shopping. As I was walking down the street, I saw a jewellery shop. Then I saw a robber stole some things and shot at the shop assistant. I broke into a cold sweat and screamed into terror. As I was calling the police, my heart was pounding.

I immediately rushed into the police station. 'I saw a robber in spotted shirt shot a shop assistant!' I screamed. 'What's the jewellery shop's name?' the police calmly said. 'The shop's name is "Shinny",' I replied. 'OK, we will find the robber,' the police said.

The policemen looked for clues and found some fingerprints. After analysing the fingerprints, they found the robber and arrested him.

I think this experience tells us to be careful because you will not know if someone will hurt you.
