Hi Roy,

How are you? Let me tell you about my bus ride yesterday. After school, Grandpa and I went home by bus. Two young boys sat opposite us. They were eating curry fish balls but we shouldn't eat on the bus. We were annoyed. I tried to warn them, 'You shouldn't eat on the bus,' but they were as stubborn as mules and wouldn't listen.

Suddenly, I saw a woman wearing a mask. I offered my seat to her and she said, 'Thank you!' Meanwhile, the boys were playing with their fish balls and laughing loudly.

One of the boys dropped his fish ball and it landed on my left shoe. It was all dirty. I was very upset. The boys looked at me and were shocked.

The boys cried, 'We're really sorry. We didn't mean to do it. Please forgive us.' I took out some tissue and cleaned my shoe. I looked at them and said, 'I forgive you but never eat on the bus again.'

I saw them on the bus today and they were not eating anymore. I think they learnt their lesson.

How about you? How was school? Please write back soon.

Love,

Judy
